Rotary Club of Taipei – English Speech Contest

The English Speech Contest (ESC) is hosted by the Rotary Club of Taipei (RCT). The club is now in its 70th year of service to the community. The ESC is in its 63rd year having begun modestly in 1955, when the Rotary Club of Taipei sponsored two separate oratory competitions celebrating the theme that "He profits most who serves the best". The following year saw the birth of the Inter-Collegiate English Oratory Contest which evolved to the current ESC format. Open to students at Taiwan ROC's universities, the ESC continues to be a major service activity of the Rotary Club of Taipei. Over the years, thousands of students have benefited from the opportunities provided by the competition and have continued on to important professional and community leadership positions.

This years ESC topic is Youth-Driven Social Entrepreneurship.

As with past ESC events, the core objectives of this contest will stay focused on Improving Leadership Skills, Confidence and Communication Skills. This years topic will also urge participants to focus on social issues that require proper solutions. Promoting Entrepreneurial Skills as well.

Social enterprise is about changing the world through business. Social enterprises exist and trade not to maximize private profit, but to further their social and environmental initiatives. In short, social enterprise is about business where everyone profits.

RCT would like to to hear from you, the youth of Taiwan. Tell us about an idea that you have to better the community, or the world, that you live in.

The main Rotary Areas of Focus are listed below. Use these main categories to properly organize your idea for the contest.

- Peace and conflict prevention/resolution

Judging

Judging takes place in two rounds:

First Round – Concept and Executive Summary Submission

Grand Finale – In-person pitch to judging panel, potential investors

There will be a panel of judges for each of the two stages. Each panel will be made up of Rotarians, educators, executives, business owners, philanthropists, venture capitalists, professors and social entrepreneurs.

The best plan is the one that judges believe will generate the greatest social good, subject to feasibility. Not only should the idea be attractive in terms of its potential for social value creation, but the plan must also be practical in terms of the likelihood of achieving success. The judges will consider the following criteria:

Concept

The concept should reflect an innovative, feasible approach to solve a serious social problem. The team should demonstrate a clear understanding of the issues it seeks to address and the economic and social drivers of the problem and its solution.

People

The individual, or team, should demonstrate that it has or is able to acquire relevant skills, contacts, and expertise in order to accomplish its goals. The individual, or team, should be credible in communicating the plan and its feasibility.

Social Impact

Though it is not necessary to compute quantified measures of the social impact, the team must be able to qualify the theory of change, that is, to define the impact value chain by illustrating how your business inputs, activities and outputs can generate outcomes and subsequent impact that aligned with your initial mission and goals.

Sustainability

The business model should be sustainable for the period of time consistent with achieving the desired social impact. The plan's final projected year may involve ending the business, continuing operations at a constant level, stable growth, transferring ownership and control or replicating the business in other locations.

Prizes

Winners of the 2018 ESC will receive direct mentorship and seed funding for their social enterprise. Winners will also be eligible for internships facilitated by RCT and its affiliate organizations.
