(ppt 9)Anika: Hi, this is Anika. I'm an elementary school teacher. I have a question about your product. (listening to the phone) Sounds great! Really?! You're coming to our school for some educational activities?! That's wonderful (listening to the phone)

(ppt 10)Narrator 2: Working with Savlon and through various engaging and entertaining educational activities, it's expected that the habit of handwashing can be formed.

(ppt 11)Narrator 2: Savlon even produced an ingenious product, Healthy Hands Chalk Sticks, the soap chalk, which looks and works like chalk but infused with cleansers, to engage school children and emphasize the significance of washing hands.

(ppt 12)Anika: (Anika makes the second call.) We really appreciate your help with our school kids. But to be honest, we can't really afford it... I want to let all the children use this product and feel fun when they wash their hands. (listening to the phone)

(ppt 13)Narrator 2: To make this product affordable, they set the retail price at 5 rupees a box. Moreover, they supplied 50,000 boxes to all Indian schools.

Anika: Really? Thanks for your kindness. It's our duty to protect children's health!

(A scene showing how the company helps there in the elementary school.)
(giving hands chalk sticks to each kid in school.)
